MY BACKGROUND

I started off like every law enforcement officer wanting to help people in my community. My experience spanned diverse roles for nineteen years, from Patrol to the Sex Crimes Unit and Homicide Section. I also had the privilege of serving as a Crisis Negotiator for a decade. I was promoted late in my career and have been the Crisis Negotiation Team Commander and an Investigations Supervisor overseeing homicides, sex crimes, and officer-involved incidents. Currently, I am an Investigations Commander at a large municipal police agency. Policing is done in many different ways, but after doing thousands of interviews investigating my community's most critical cases. I learned that great law enforcement, in every capacity, is about effective and quality information gathering.

I studied Criminology (BS) at Kansas State University and Forensic Psychology (MA) at the University of North Dakota. Professionally, I am a National Institute of Justice LEADS Scholar, a Certified Red Team Practitioner, an Executive Fellow at the National Policing Institute, a graduate of the DC Metro Police Leadership Academy, and Co-Director of Project Aletheia at the John Jay College of Criminal Justice. I have loved collaborating with researchers and other practitioners from across the globe to bring evidence-based interview practices to my agency and many others. These techniques work, they work incredibly well. They work on our toughest and most sensitive cases! Effective communication builds stronger cases, creates more reliable outcomes and forges elite officers and investigators.
